Hush!

"I can scarcely hear," she murmured,
"For my heart beats loud and fast,
But surely in the far, far distance
I can hear a song at last."
"It is only the reapers singing
As they carry home their sheaves;
And the evening breeze has risen,
And rustles the dying leaves."

"Listen! there are voices talking;"
Calmiv still she s rove to speak;
Yet her voice grew faint and trembling,
And the red flushed in her check.
"It is only the children playing
Below, now their work is done;
And they laugh that their eyes are dazzled
By the rays of the setting sun."

As with anxious eyes she cried,
"Down the avenue of chestnuts
I can hear a horseman ride."
"It was only the deer that were feeding
In a herd on the clover grass;
They were startled and fled to the thicket,
As they saw the reapers pass."

at sea—sometimes so much as to dash some of the molten lead out of the kettie. Of course there is no danger, because the edifice is usually constructed with an iron frame, which is not only strong but elastic, while the brick filling gives additional stability. But, as at the famous tower at Pisa, to the summit of which no one probably ever ascended without, on looking over, involuntarily recoiling with the expectation that the edifice surely was about to fall; so, in the shot tower, one's powers of perception and reasoning faculties are at direct variance; and nervous people are liable to receive a disagreeable shock in Tabby's Curiosity Satisfied.

The Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise tells this affecting story: "Charles Kaiser, who has the only hive of bees in town, says that when he first got his swarm his old cat's curiosity was muck excited in regard to the doings of the little insects, the like of which she had never before seen. At first she watched their comings and goings at a distance. She then flattened herself upon the ground, and crept along toward the hive, with tail horizontal and quivering. A Singular Fact.

A recent traveler in Mexico, who visited the mines there during his journey, says that he was much astonished at seeing the men who carry the ore prise, explained the matter. He said the candles belonging to the tarateros (who drill and blast) do not give sufficient light in the drifts, where it is consequently quite dark, but where, nevertheless, the tarateros see well enough not to run their heads against the rocks. But, on emerging into daylight, they would be blinded did they not take precautionary measures. For this reason as they approach the mouth of the shaft, at the point where they catch the mst glimpse of light, they drop the eyelid of one eye, and keep this down while they are discharging their ore and until they have re-descended the shaft. When they are again in the dark, they pen the eye kept hitherto in reserve. and at once they see everything distinctly; while the other eye, previously men and somewhat blinded by the dayight, perceives nothing at ali.

Foreigners are given to embracing, and in France and Germany the parent kisses his grown-up son on the forehead, men throw their arms around the necks of ike lovers. It is a curious sight to Americans, with their natural preindices against publicity in kissing. In England and America there are three methods of salutation-the bow, the andshake and the kiss. The bow is the proper method of salutation between equaintances in public, and should never be a mere nod, but when made by a gentleman to a lady should be accompanied by the removal of the hat from the head and the cigar from the ips. In regard to the handshake, etiuette is simple. A man has no right to take a lady's hand until it is offered. He has even less right to pinch or re-
